

Wild dominated second game in the series, but it wasn't enough to win it all

The Rattlers went ahead again on a power-play marker, but Ryan Williamson evened things again before the frame was history by lobbing a shot from the blue line that fooled goalie Andreas Goetz.

King enjoyed a couple of two-man advantages in the third, and Zanette capitalized on one of them, with help from Mike Bodley and Sean Pollard, but that lead only lasted three minutes. Bradford scored another power-play marker, although Hampton maintained the play was offside by about five feet.

The extra frame lasted a little more than five minutes, as the Rattlers connected while the Cougars were killing a penalty.

"I thought we played well enough to win," the coach commented later. "I certainly think the world of the kids. They worked really hard tonight."

The series opened last Tuesday in Bradford, with the hosts coming out on top of a 2-1 final. Matt Marchese collected the goal for the side, assisted by Jordan Gidaro.

Hampton later suggested his men might have gone into that match expecting to lose, but they were able to step up their play late in the action, as the "realization set in these other guys are human, just like us."

It was a very different story for the second game Thursday night in Bradford. The Wild came storming out clearly meaning business, and they were in charge for just about the whole match, eventually winning 6-3.

The guys took a 2-0 lead in the first period, then had a three-minute let-down in the second, during which Bradford tied things up. But that was the last time the Rattlers were close to taking over the game, as a one-goal lead was restored by the end of the frame.

Bodley led the scoring attack with three goals and an assist, and Brendon Farrugia, Pollard and Dan Douglas each got a goal and an assist. Zdrillich helped out on three of the markers, and single assists were notched by Derek Long, Zanette, Petti and John Adams.

"I think we just hit everything we saw, and it slowed them down," a jubilant Bodley commented after the game. "They're a good team. We knew we just had to be on our game."

Friday night was an evening the Wild would probably prefer to forget. The team played well in the first and third periods, but the four unanswered goals they allowed in the second created a hard hole for them to climb out of. Bradford took the match 5-0.

"Sometimes the wheels fall off the cart, and they fell off tonight," Hampton commented later.

The team was able to get the wheels back on the cart for Saturday's game in Nobleton, and they came out flying. Bodley opened the scoring after just 16 seconds, with help from Zanette, but Bradford tied the score late in the frame, with some inadvertent help from one of the linesmen. He got in the way of a Wild clearing pass, and the resulting loose puck was pounced upon by the other side.

The rest of the game was scoreless, until the Rattlers connected with 5:34 gone in extra time.

"We'll be back next year," club president Naz Marchese commented Sunday night outside the Wild dressing room after congratulating the players. "I think that our goal was to put as many King kids on the team and we did that with 10 King kids."

"The team grew in the community," he added. "We started getting a following, which is nice."

The Ford Wayne Gretzky Arena Tour, operating in conjunction with Fines Ford in Bolton, stopped at the arena in Nobleton Saturday during the King Wild game. Grown ups had the chance to check out some of the vehicles in the arena parking lot, while the younger crowd got to play some video hockey. Chantelle Pollard of Holland Landing (sister of Wild forward Sean Pollard) was assisting her son Jayden Robinson, 6, and Trevor Grasby, 7, in working the game.

WINGS BATTLE WINGS IN TYKE SERIES

The Schomberg Red Wings tyke 2 club (in the dark uniforms), sponsored by All Stone Quarry, were able to edge their tyke 1 foes Saturday 5-4, but the 1 team leads their best-of-five series two games to one as of press time. They have posted 3-2 and 5-2 wins. The series was to resume last night (Tuesday) and the results were not known at press time.

Kurt Zdrillich was trying to get an attack started in Friday's game in Nobleton. It turned out to be a long night for the Wild.
